

Overall, there wasn't much difference between the browsers in terms of display or functionality. All colors and fonts remained the same throughout each browser. To take the full page screenshot however, Microsoft Edge had the capability built in while the other two browsers required extensions.